Food Lion is celebrating its 60th anniversary with The Lion's Run, an inaugural 6K (3.7-mile) race and 1 mile children's fun run. The race takes place Saturday, October 14, in Food Lion's hometown of Salisbury, N.C. Proceeds will benefit Rowan Helping Ministries in Salisbury, N.C., and Second Harvest Food Bank of Metrolina in Charlotte, N.C.

"Food Lion is incredibly proud to celebrate 60 years of nourishing the local community in our hometown of Salisbury, N.C., as well as thousands of others across our ten-state footprint," said Food Lion President Meg Ham. "The Lion's Run is the perfect way to honor this milestone, as it gives our associates the opportunity to come together and help feed those in need."

Rowan Helping Ministries and Second Harvest Food Bank of Metrolina work to end hunger in Rowan County and surrounding areas. They are frequent partners of the Food Lion Feeds hunger-relief initiative, which has provided more than more than 300 million meals to its neighbors in need since 2014.

The Lion's Run starts and ends at the Food Lion located at 123 Mahaley Avenue, home of the original Food Lion location. Open to participants of any age, the run welcomes runners, walkers, stroller-pushers and others.

During the race, Food Lion will do what it does best and provide participants with fresh snacks such as fruit, protein bars, water and more.

Participants may register for the race online at <https://runsignup.com/Race/NC/Salisbury/LionsRun6K>. The cost per participant is $25 through the early bird date of Sept. 15.
