On Wednesday, Oct. 14, Food Lion will unveil a new, easier shopping experience for customers in 162 stores in the greater Raleigh, N.C., market. In an effort to make shopping more affordable for its customers, the company made a landmark $250 million capital investment this year, the largest in the grocer's history. The total investment in the market includes remodeling the stores, lowering prices and investing in associates and in the community.

"Food Lion has been a proud neighbor in the Raleigh community for 40 years," said Meg Ham, president of Food Lion. "On the anniversary of our four decades in the market, we spent the year making significant investments in our stores, our customers, our associates and our community to offer a new grocery shopping experience where customers can easily find fresh, quality products at affordable prices every day, delivered with caring, friendly service every time they shop. We invite our customers to come out and experience 'How Life is Better with the Lion' at Food Lion and let us know what you think of the new stores."

As part of the celebration festivities on Oct. 14, the company will give away free groceries to the first 100 customers at each location in the greater Raleigh market. A complete list of the remodeled stores, along with the free grocery giveaway locations, is available in the attachment below.

Key outcomes of the investments include:

- Fully remodeled stores that provide an easier place to shop for customers,
- Lower prices on thousands of items across all departments of the store,
- Fresher produce, quality meats, an expanded selection of natural and organic items, as well as a dedicated gluten-free section, all at affordable prices, and
- Enhanced customer service created by promoting or hiring hundreds of associates throughout the market and investing in additional customer-centric training for its 10,000 associates in this market.

"With every change we made in our stores, we had our customers at the forefront with a key focus on how can we better connect with those we serve to make their life a little easier and a little better," added Ham. "That's why we not only invested in the stores, but invested in promoting the great associates we already had at Food Lion and in new talent by redoubling our hiring efforts this year. It's also why, as part of the launch of our new stores, we're partnering with the food bank in a big and lasting way to help this important organization expand its efforts to end hunger in a significant portion of the state. Giving back to our communities is something that we're just as passionate about as serving our customers every day in our stores."

Donation of One-of-a-Kind Mobile Food Pantry

Consistent with its focus on eliminating hunger in its local communities, Food Lion Feeds has also donated a one-of-a-kind mobile food pantry, valued at over $100,000, or the equivalent of more than 1 million meals, to the Food Bank of Central & Eastern North Carolina. The innovative vehicle will bring food to places where there is a need throughout the 34 counties served by the food bank, whether it's a school, disaster location or community without access to fresh, healthy food.

"Food Lion has been a tremendous partner for our food bank and without their support, we would not be able to serve the thousands of clients we feed each year," said Peter Werbicki, president and CEO, Food Bank of Central and Eastern North Carolina. "We're very excited about this innovative mobile pantry, which will enable our agency to deliver food into areas in the Raleigh market traditionally underserved by feeding agencies. We can always count on Food Lion to meet our needs to help end the fight of hunger in communities. Their associates are extremely passionate about helping to eliminate hunger and we appreciate all they do, whether its daily donations from their stores, volunteering at various events, or making a significant investment in our community that would not have been possible without this donation."

The mobile pantry donation is part of the grocer's commitment to provide 500 million meals to individuals and families in need by the end of 2020.

New Store Features for Customers

The remodeled stores include new features that make shopping and saving easier for customers.

Food Lion expanded its product selection in stores by adding thousands of new items and lowering prices throughout the store.
