Grocer Helps Food Bank Reach Quarter of a Millionth Meal Distribution

Public Company Information:

NYSE: DEG

Food Lion is donating $10,000 of its store-brand food products to the Blue Ridge Area Food Bank at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, May 15 to feed 230 area needy families through the Food Bank's Mobile Food Pantry in Lovingston, Va. All recipients for this distribution have been contacted.

"Food Lion is a strong community partner and is dedicated to assisting hunger relief and nutrition education programs in the communities we serve," said Bill Garcia, Community Relations Manager for Food Lion. "Participating in the food distribution event in Lovingston, Va., is another great opportunity for us to give back to our customers."

Food Lion recently launched its new brand strategy in the market where the company lowered prices on 6,000 items throughout the store and offers access to quality store brand products at lower prices, including the company's my essentials value tier, as well as fresh produce and an easy and convenient shopping experience.

The Blue Ridge Area Food Bank launched the Mobile Food Pantry in February 2011 and has since distributed more than 200,000 meals in southern Albemarle, Nelson, Buckingham and Fluvanna counties. During next week's special distribution, the Food Bank will reach a milestone and distribute its quarter of a millionth meal.

"We are immensely grateful for this contribution from Food Lion, as it couldn't come at a more opportune time," said Larry Zippin, CEO of the Blue Ridge Area Food Bank. "The summer months are tough because food and financial donations plummet, and the past year has been even more difficult as food donations from several sources have declined. However, having a grocery partner like Food Lion makes a huge difference. This contribution is one of many that they make all year long. We appreciate their sustained support and their dedication to helping folks in need in our community."
