Company Seeking Applications for Positions, Including Full-Time and Part-Time Roles

Public Company Information:

NYSE: DEG

Bottom Dollar Food, a discount grocer, is hiring more than 800 associates over the next several months to begin to prepare for store openings next year.

"We look forward to expanding in Pittsburgh and Youngstown, Ohio, next year, and bringing new jobs to these areas," said Bottom Dollar Food President Meg Ham. "We have a great work environment and are always looking for talented, energetic people to join our team as we create new jobs in the community. We look forward to providing our associates an amazing work environment, while growing our business and partnering with our communities."

Bottom Dollar Food is recruiting for a variety of full-time and part-time positions, including sales associates, customer service associates, grocery and fresh department positions, among many others. The company will hold interviews in November and December, and interested applicants can apply online at www.bottomdollarfood.com or e-mail resumes at resumes@bottomdollarfood.com. Because of the number of applicants applying for positions, Bottom Dollar Food cannot respond to individual calls inquiring about the status of applications at this time. Interested applicants should apply online or use the e-mail as detailed above.
